

Refuting our own conjecture: monthly net-diff utilization is biased in LEVEL and in the pre/post CONTRAST
(the within-month truncation factor differs by regime, so it does not cancel)

(a) Level: monthly $\hat{\rho}$ biased upward as within-month churn rises

(b) Contrast: regime difference is ALSO biased — cancellation fails

